BASEBALL AND FISHING

Do not go hand in hand, but Meredith's headquarters for everything needful in these popular sports is at

SANBORN'S DRUG STORE,

We must inform you that we are sole agents here for the manufacturers of Baseball goods and can give you better values than you can get elsewhere.

For Fishing Tackle

we have struck a new place to buy, and must of necessity draw your trade if price and assortment will do it. About one-half of our line has arrived, but the remainder is expected daily.

Ready for Business.

Everything indicates a great revival of cycling this season. People all over the country are seeing the important part the bicycle takes in their affairs, and from a point of business they feel the need of a good bicycle.

SPECIAL EDITION

Issued by the Woman's Progress Club of Meredith.

EVA S. BLAKE,
EDITOR.

EVA J. BEEDE, SARAH M. NOYES
HATTIE R. ERSKINE,
ASSOCIATE EDITORS.

The readers of the MEREDITH NEWS may wonder why the women of the Progress Club issue this number. For two reasons only. It was thought that one number of such a character would interest its readers, also that there were those among our members who would be willing to undertake such an enterprise. It was, as Holmes said, "faith in something and enthusiasm for something."

There will be published only a few of the many excellent papers which we have enjoyed, and these of necessity have to be greatly abridged; yet if the reader finds in them anything cheering, anything instructive, anything uplifting, we kindly ask that it be passed on. With this brief explanation, the members of the Progress Club extend to the readers of the NEWS, greetings.

HATTIE R. ERSKINE,
President Woman's Progress Club.

There is nothing about the appearance of the earth with its mantle of snow this morning to suggest the observance of Arbor Day, yet there is time for a change between now and April 30, the appointed day. In his proclamation for Fast Day, the Governor gave no better reason for its observance than the fact that it was honored by custom, but there are many reasons.

The Baby.

FRANKLIN FALLS, APRIL 12, 1904.

The only baby has been born to the club. It was a boy, and of course, it can't count in women's clubs. Miss Beede is the child of Eva J. Beede and the only baby of Mayor Wood. It was born in Laconia, N. H., on April 12, 1904.

Clubs.

for active members from $1.00 to $2.00, and for associate members from $1.00 to $1.50. There is of course much which might be said both for and against the proposed increase but whether it will prove to be for the ultimate good of the club only time can tell. In the meantime we are "Owen" no man, for what we have accomplished this year we expect to receive our full "Mead" of praise and we shall endeavor next year to continue our philanthropic work with an enthusiasm that "Brooks" no delay.

Recording Secretary,

Laconia Woman's Club.

Franklin Falls, April 12, 1904.

Our club has done nothing especially noteworthy this year. It has the distinction, I believe, of being the first club in the state to become incorporated. This step was taken in order that the club might be legally entitled to hold property. We are thus enabled to preserve some old landmarks which have been given into our charge and our interest in folklore makes us regard as a real privilege this legal right to preserve historic spots which might otherwise be blotted out of existence and out of memory.

We have felt it also a privilege to be a life member of the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests and thus aid the work of preserving our national birchright.

Wishing your issue of the paper a success, I am, very truly yours,
Mary A. Proctor.

Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth recently gave her lecture on "Prison Reform" under the auspices of the Tilton Woman's club. For seven or eight years Mrs. Booth has devoted much of her time to reformatory work for the men in Sing Sing prison and to superintending the same kind of work in other large prisons.

Her interest in the criminal classes grew out of the feeling that they should not be given up as hopelessly bad, but that the period of imprisonment should be also a period of reformation in character.

FISH. FISH. FISH.

The fishing season is nearly upon us. Consult the Butcher, the Baker, the Grocer or any other side line you please about tackle but when you get ready to buy your fishing supplies, remember we are IT on low prices, best goods and choice selection. Our lines of all sorts of sporting goods are new, fresh and right. Visit us when in need. See our Base Ball supplies display.

"Frankie," said Willie, "if you will help me save that wood, I'll give you half of all I get for the job. Now, papa, how much will you give me?"

"I'll give you a licking," said papa, "if you don't hurry up with it."

"All right, Frankie," said Willie, cheerfully, "you can have half just the same."

Marion was a gushing young college girl, who was spending the summer at Lake Winnepesaukee, and this is what she wrote to one of her friends: Dear Chum,—Here I am, in the midst of the most charming scenery in the world. HOW TO PRONOUNCE HYOMEI

Geo. F. Sanborn Tells of This Remarkable Treatment That Cures Catarrh Without Stomach Dosing.

"While all my customers who have used Hyomei agree that it is remarkably successful in curing catarrh and other diseases of the air passage," says Geo. F. Sanborn, "yet there has been considerable diversity of opinion as to how the name is pronounced."

"Hyomei is pronounced just as it was spelled 'high-o-me,' with the accent on the first syllable."

A great many come to my store and instead of asking for Hyomei, tell me they want a package of the treatment for catarrh that I am selling on a guarantee."

While I know what they mean, and all of my clerks will give them Hyomei, yet I want every one to know how to pronounce the name of Hyomei, so that they may run no chance of getting anything but Hyomei, no matter where they go.

"It is nature's true cure for catarrh of the throat. It kills the germs of this disease, soothes and heals the irritated mucous membrane, and effectually drives all catarrhal poisons from the system."

"All the stomach dosing in the world can do no lasting good in the treatment of catarrh unless the nose and throat are free from catarrhal microbes. There is no stomach dosing with Hyomei; just breathe it."

"I have so much confidence in the value of the treatment, that I am selling it with the understanding that I will return the money if it fails to cure. All News readers know that I do exactly as I agree."

Had Seven Gallons Left.

Messrs. Lechenman & Leflin, Grafton, W. Va., had been selling a point, which they thought well on, and this had occurred.

They had sold a customer 18 gallons of it to paint his house. A few years later, they sold the same man Bayou lead-and-zinc the same number of gallons to paint the same house. He had 7 gallons left.

The point of the tale is: 11 gallons Devot paints an 18-gallon house.

Of course, that isn't all.

When 11 gallons Devot go as far as 18 gallons of other paint? He is not a saint, all true, no more.

Origin and Purpose of the Woman's Club.

The past century is called "the century of enlightenment" on account of the achievements of science and the diffusion of knowledge among the masses. While everything was progressing around them it was not natural that woman should progress too. With the coming of labor-saving devices for domestic use and the opening up of an educational vista for women, came also a desire for mental, moral and physical improvement. Means of rapid communication with distant parts and increased facilities for travel and observation created a longing for friendship outside of customary environment. The closing years of the last century were marked by the breaking down of social barriers among women and the organization of societies on a broader plane than before known, societies for intellectual research, mutual improvement, and advancement of all seemingly virtues. The first step in this direction was the appearance of women's branches of men's secret societies, but the responsibility of these was shared by the husbands, brothers and sons. The feminine mind was ripening fast, and passing through the process of some central link of communication between men, thinkers and writers and the details of privileges enjoyed by the men in this line, there sprang into existence an organization for women only, known as the woman's club. Small beginnings oft have mighty ends; the movement once started spread with great rapidity over the entire country, sweeping in great and systematic and lifting the sex as nothing had ever done before. The club differed from all other societies in the fact that there were no secret oaths or obligations. There were no burdensome dues and their ends were not selfish. They were social, united purpose among educated women to get all the pleasure possible out of the intellectual and social intercourse with one another and make the every-day world a better and happier place by each contributing her mite towards that end.

The movement was at first confined to the large city, but gradually it spread to the smaller towns and villages. The formation of a general federation for the United States placed every isolated club in sympathy and touch with every other in the country, and there arose a new power, the influence of good, moral womanhood devoted to the welfare of home, children, state and country.

The club movement reached its zenith with the dawn of the new century. Here, as elsewhere, women were waiting for the opportunity to show their own success of the Woman's Progress club goes to show how ripe were the minds and how real were the needs of those who gave of their time and talents for the benefit of the others. Whoever pertains to good home making, to the educational and moral welfare of children, to public health and social purity, are all subjects for the club curriculum, and wherever is interested in any one of those things will find both profit and pleasure in the club meetings.

ISABEL A. GILMAN.

What to Do in Emergencies.

The fact that valuable lives are often saved by people knowing what to do in an emergency is not generally known. It is not to be feared that we physicians ought to educate the people to recognize disease and to act intelligently in the right way until one who is skilled in medicine and surgery can be called to take charge of the case.

I will first treat of asphyxy. This is a disease which usually only affects adults past 30 years of age.

The chief cause of asphyxy is respiratory or total loss of consciousness and is frequently accompanied by nausea and vomiting. The pulse is slow and full, the breathing is slow, often rapid and irregular; face flushed and there is partial or complete paralysis of one side of the body, if the case is serious.

If the patient is conscious the tongue, if protruded is often put out sideways, and one side of the face may be down in an unusual position.

This disease must be combated with fasting. Stimulants should not be given as they are harmful, congesting the brain and causing more vomiting and discharges into the brain substance. The first thing to be done is to put the patient to bed in a cool, darkened and well-ventilated room. Remove all, loosen all clothing about the neck; apply cold to the head and heat to the feet.

FAINTING OR SYNCOPE.

This is the apparent cessation of the pulse and breathing. The face has a death-like paleness; hands and feet are cold; eyes half-closed or closed, and body limp.

REVERSY.

Convulsions are characterized by loss of consciousness attendant on the convulsive movements.

All you can do in this condition is to place the patient upon a bed or upon some flat surface and prevent injury to himself.

Place a roll of cloth or a handkerchief between the teeth to protect the tongue from being bitten. Remove all clothing; give free ventilation; do not attempt to restrain the convulsions by holding the person down. Use alcohol, eat to excess or of fat or rich foods, nor become greatly excited.

STURNS AND SCALDS.

The injury is much the same in both cases. If the injury the body has received be serious, the patient complains less of pain than of cold. The skin is much depressed and must be well supplied with stimulants to prevent his dying from shock.

In both large and small burns protect well from the air. Immerse the burned part at once in cold water and the moment it emerges dredge it an inch or two thick with common dry flour. A soon as the water has been removed (no milk baking soda) applied promptly relieves the pain.

The scalds, accompanied with a weak solution of carbolic acid is good for dressing a severe burn. It is also good for dressing a gunpowder burn as it prevents the disorganization of the skin.

The whites of eggs are also useful.

With the Bow of the Bow.

If this is not done, hold the child with head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders. If a grown person, with head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders. If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

The chief thing to do at this time is the control of the hemorrhage till pressure can be applied. The application of cold to the head and neck, the immediate application of cold to the head and neck, the immediate application of cold to the head and neck.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

In large amounts, where possible pressure is to be exerted for purposes of compression. If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

and second their effect upon the general system. The general treatment is to empty the stomach by emetics of mustard in water, or ipecac in water. If the patient has just been swallowed.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.

If the patient is lying on his back with his head down and give a few quick slaps between the shoulders.
